I. INTRODUCTION

This matter comes before the Court on Defendants' Motion to Compel (Dkt. #41) and Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions and Order to Show Cause (Dkt. #59). Defendants' Second Motion to Compel (Dkt. #71) and Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (Dkt. #76) will be resolved by separate Orders. The Court has previously set forth the background to this matter and incorporates it by reference herein. See Dkt. #60 at 2-3. For the reasons set forth below, the Court resolves the motions as follows.

II. DISCUSSION

A. Defendants' Motion to Compel

1. Electronic Search Terms

Defendants have filed a motion to compel Plaintiff to run certain electronic search terms and to compel certain third parties to respond to subpoenas duces tecum. Dkt. #41. Specifically, Defendants ask the Court to compel Plaintiff to run search terms related to a 2012 consent decree that Plaintiff entered into with Washington State's Attorney General ("AG") to resolve a Consumer Protection Act claim that had been brought by the AG against Plaintiff, and to compel Ron Cats, Alex Elliot and Tom Reed to fully respond to subpoenas issued to them in their personal capacities. Id. Plaintiff objects to the search terms regarding the consent decree as irrelevant. Dkt. #51 at 6-7. Plaintiff objects to the subpoenas on the basis that they are burdensome and that they fail to comply with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45. Dkt. #51 at 8-12. For the following reasons, Defendants' motion will be GRANTED.

Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(1):

Parties may obtain discovery regarding any nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party's claim or defense and proportional to the needs of the case, considering the importance of the issues at stake in the action, the amount in controversy, the parties' relative access to relevant information, the parties' resources, the importance of the discovery in resolving the issues, and whether the burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit. Information within this scope of discovery need not be admissible in evidence to be discoverable.

If requested discovery is not answered, the requesting party may move for an order compelling such discovery. Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(1). "The party who resists discovery has the burden to show that discovery should not be allowed, and has the burden of clarifying, explaining, and supporting its objections." Cable & Computer Tech., Inc. v. Lockheed Sanders, Inc., 175 F.R.D. 646, 650 (C.D. Cal. 1997).

1 With respect to the search terms requested by Defendants – “attorney w/2 general” and
2 “consent w/2 decree” – the Court agrees with Defendants that these terms are relevant to
3 Defendants’ counterclaim. Plaintiff relies on the former standard under Rule 26 to argue that
4 these terms are not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Dkt.
5 #51 at 6. However, that is no longer the standard. Plaintiff does not assert that the terms are 6 privileged or burdensome, or that the requested discovery is not proportional to the needs of the 7 case. Accordingly, Plaintiff will be compelled to run these electronic search terms.

9 2. Subpoenas Duces Tecum

10 The Court next turns to the subpoenas issued to Mr. Cats, Mr. Elliot and Mr. Reed. Mr.
11 Elliot and Mr. Reed are former employees of Defendant NextAlarm, who are now employees of 12 Plaintiff. Mr. Cats is the founder/owner of Plaintiff. Mr. Cats objected to his subpoena on the 13 basis that it was an improper attempt to obtain discovery from a party employee. Dkt. #42, Ex.
14 G. Mr. Cats further objected that the subpoena is overbroad, unduly burdensome, and that the 15 costs outweigh the potential for acquiring relevant information. Id. Mr. Elliot and Mr. Reed
16 made the same objections. Dkt. #42, Exs. H and I. These individuals also asserted that any 17 responsive documents would be contained in Plaintiff’s electronic systems, and therefore would 18 be searched in response to discovery requests to Plaintiff. Dkts. #42, Exs. G, H and I.

21 Defendants now move to compel responses to the subpoenas, noting that they were issued 22 to these individuals in their personal capacities, and therefore responsive documents could be 23 contained on their personal computers, phones, etc., which would not be duplicative of the 24 employer’s documents. Dkt. #41 at 4-5. Defendants also note that these individuals have 25 provided no specific information about the alleged burden and expense of complying with the 26 subpoenas. Id. In response to the motion, Plaintiff argues that if these individuals are non-
27

1 parties, then the subpoenas do not comply with Rule 45 because they request compliance at a
2 location that is more than 100 miles from where they live and or work, and because they did not
3 allow a reasonable time to comply. Dkt. #51 at 9. Plaintiff also argues that if, on the other hand,
4 these individuals are parties, Defendants are required to follow Rule 34 in making these discovery
5 requests. Id.

7 As an initial matter, the Court notes that the subpoenas were issued to these individuals
8 in their personal capacities, as non-parties. Rule 45 governs the process of seeking discovery
9 from a non-party by subpoena. Fed. R. Civ. P. 45. It allows a party to request a non-party to 10 produce designated documents and ESI. Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(a)(1)(A). “[T]he scope of discovery
11 through a subpoena is the same as that applicable to Rule 34 and the other discovery rules.” Fed.
12 R. Civ. P. 45, advisory committee notes (1970). Under Rule 34, the rule governing the production
13 of documents between parties, the proper scope is that specified in Rule 26. Fed. R. Civ. P. 34(a).

15 Rule 26 limits the scope of discovery to any “nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any 16 party’s claim or defense - including the existence, description, nature, custody, condition, and 17 location of any documents or other tangible things and the identity and location of persons who 18 know of any discoverable matter.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1). Pursuant to Rule 26, the Court must 19 limit the extent of discovery if it determines that the discovery sought is unreasonably 20 duplicative, can be obtained from some other more convenient source, or if the burden of the 21 proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(2)(C).

24 In this case, the subpoenas at issue request documents and communications related to 25 Numerex Corp, NextAlarm, LLC, Amcest, and American Digital Monitoring. The subpoenas
26 comply with Rule 45. They do not ask the individuals to travel more than 100 miles from where 27 they live or work; rather, Defendants have requested that the documents be provided electronically. Moreover, any objection to the 100-mile radius was waived, as it was never raised prior to the instant motion. In the ordinary case, failure to timely object waives the right to object later. McCoy v. Southwest Airlines Co., 211 F.R.D. 381, 385 (C.D. Cal. 2002) (“[A] nonparty’s failure to timely make objections to a Rule 45 subpoena duces tecum generally requires the court to find that any objection, including attorney-client privilege, has been waived.”)

As for any objection based on relevance, these individuals fail to explain specifically why the documents are not relevant, or that a search of the documents would be unduly burdensome. Indeed, Plaintiff simply makes the blanket statement that the documents sought by Defendants “do not concern this matter and could not lead to relevant information.” Dkt. #51 at 12. Accordingly, Mr. Cats, Mr. Elliot and Mr. Reed will be compelled to fully respond to the subpoenas.

3. Attorney’s Fees

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 37(a)(5)(A) requires the Court to grant the moving party’s expenses in making the motion if the motion is granted. The Court finds no reason not to grant Defendants’ request. Accordingly, the Court shall award Defendants their attorney’s fees related to its motion to compel as set forth below.

B. Plaintiff’s Motion for Sanctions

The Court now turns to Plaintiff’s Motions for Sanctions and an Order to Show Cause. Dkt. #59. In that motion, Plaintiff initially sought sanctions for Defendant’s withholding of certain documents on the basis that they had a pending motion for protective order. Id. Since the filing of the motion, the Court has denied a protective order and the documents were produced. However, Plaintiff continues to seek sanctions for the time period that it alleges Defendants were not in compliance with the stipulated ESI Order. See Dkt. #66. Having

1 reviewed the motion, and the remainder of the record, the Court finds that sanctions are not
2 appropriate at this time. See Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 37(d)(2) (“A failure described in Rule 37(d)(1)(A)
3 is not excused on the ground that the discovery sought was objectionable, unless the party failing
4 to act has a pending motion for a protective order under Rule 26(c).”). Accordingly, Plaintiff’s
5 motion will be denied.
